The deeply talented faculty, supportive advising, and program flexibility provided me with a clear pathway for balancing my professional and personal lives while obtaining my degree. The content of my courses has enriched my pedagogy and philosophy by expanding my understanding of everything in education; from systems-level improvement planning to anti-racism practices for my classroom.

I am using mindfulness techniques to help my students become more aware of their emotions and habits of mind and to build my capacity to be a calm, consistent, nurturing presence in their lives. I have also learned how to build the informal restorative practices that I've always used in the classroom into more formal routines and rituals to build resilience and community and repair relationships.
